Dear Speaker Edgmon:

Under the authority vested in me by Article II, Section 15 of the Alaska Constitution, I have vetoed the following bill:

SB 41 am H

“An Act relating to mental health education.”

Student mental health is a serious issue, and I support efforts by parents, teachers, school districts, and communities to help students receive appropriate support. However, this bill places the State in the role of imposing upon school districts to mandate the development of mental health education at a time when districts are already working to meet existing requirements. Decisions about sensitive classroom instruction, especially instruction involving a student’s mental and emotional health, should remain as close as possible to parents, local school boards, and communities.

I remain committed to working with the legislature on measures that expand mental health resources for Alaska's youth while respecting the authority of local school boards to govern their own classrooms.

For these reasons, I have vetoed this bill.

Sincerely,

Dear President Stevens:

Under the authority vested in me by Article II, Section 15 of the Alaska Constitution, I have vetoed the following bill:

HCS SB 258(L&C)

“An Act relating to contracts for the licensing of software applications.”

I support responsible software procurement and efforts to control technology costs. However, this bill places rigid statutory limits on how the State and political subdivisions may contract for software in a highly technical and rapidly changing marketplace.

Software licensing, cybersecurity requirements, cloud services, support, hosting, and pricing models are complex and often negotiated together. Restricting those negotiations in statute could reduce flexibility, limit access to needed products, and increase costs for agencies and local governments.

The State should preserve the ability of procurement and technology professionals to evaluate software contracts based on security, performance, cost, and operational need.

For these reasons, I have vetoed this bill.

“An Act relating to the rights of minors undergoing evaluation or inpatient treatment at psychiatric hospitals; relating to the use of seclusion or restraint of minors at psychiatric hospitals; relating to a report published by the Department of Health; relating to inspections by the Department of Health of certain psychiatric hospitals; and providing for an effective date.”

Protecting minors receiving psychiatric care is an important responsibility, and I support appropriate oversight of facilities that serve vulnerable children. However, psychiatric hospitals are already subject to strict regulatory and accreditation standards, and this bill adds duplicative inspection, reporting, and notification requirements in statute.

At a time when Alaska needs to preserve and expand behavioral health capacity, the State should avoid unnecessary regulatory layers that increase administrative burdens without clearly improving patient care. Oversight should remain focused, effective, and adaptable through existing licensing, enforcement, and accreditation processes.

For these reasons, I have vetoed this bill.

Dear Speaker Edgmon:

I support efforts to keep tobacco and nicotine products away from minors. However, this bill goes beyond that purpose by creating a new tax, expanding regulatory burdens on retailers, and increasing costs for adult consumers and small businesses.

Alaska does not need a new targeted tax outside of a broader fiscal plan. New taxes should be considered carefully, transparently, and as part of a complete approach to state spending and revenue.

The age-alignment and minor-protection provisions of this bill have merit, and the administration stands ready to work with the Legislature on a clean measure that conforms Alaska's purchase age to federal law without imposing a new tax on Alaskans.

For these reasons, I have vetoed this bill.

“An Act renaming the State Commission for Human Rights the Alaska State Commission for Civil Rights; relating to investigations and conciliation by the Alaska State Commission for Civil Rights; relating to removal of commissioners of the Alaska State Commission for Civil Rights; relating to reports from the Alaska State Commission for Civil Rights; relating to the definition of ‘employer’ for the purposes of the Alaska State Commission for Civil Rights; relating to local civil rights commissions; and providing for an effective date.”

While I support protecting Alaskans from unlawful discrimination, this bill expands the Commission’s reach over nonprofit employers, including charitable, educational, and religious organizations. That expansion creates uncertainty for small community organizations and risks unnecessary administrative proceedings and litigation.

Additionally, the bill limits the Governor’s ability to ensure accountability for commissioners serving on a commission housed within the Office of the Governor.

HCS CSSB 21(L&C)

“An Act establishing the Alaska Work and Save Program in the Department of Revenue; relating to depositing permanent fund dividends into investment accounts; and providing for an effective date.”

Encouraging Alaskans to save for retirement is a worthy goal. However, this bill imposes a new mandate that requires covered private-sector employers that do not offer a qualified retirement plan to facilitate employee participation in a new state-administered retirement savings program. Although employees may opt out, the bill relies on automatic enrollment and places employers in the middle of a state-run investment program. Alaska businesses should not be required to administer or facilitate retirement savings accounts created by the State when private retirement and investment options are already available.

The State should not expand government, create new administrative obligations for employers, or use the Permanent Fund Dividend process to steer Alaskans toward investment products.

For these reasons, I have vetoed this bill.

Expanding access to health care is an important goal, and pharmacists play a valuable role in Alaska’s health care system. However, this bill moves too much authority too quickly by expanding pharmacist patient-care services, including diagnosis-related services and the prescription or administration of drugs and devices, without sufficient clarity and safeguards in statute.

In several places, the bill authorizes broad categories of patient-care services while leaving important questions about the scope of those services to future interpretation. Major changes to professional scope of practice should be accompanied by clear statutory boundaries so patients, practitioners, regulators, and courts have a common understanding of what the law permits and prohibits.

The bill also restricts the ability of the State and professional boards to approve, define, or regulate collaborative practice agreements, even though those agreements may determine the scope of pharmacist patient-care services. Alaska should not expand clinical authority while

“An Act relating to registered interior designers and interior design; relating to project costs for the construction, enlargement, or improvement of airports; extending the termination date of the State Board of Registration for Architects, Engineers, and Land Surveyors; relating to the State Board of Registration for Architects, Engineers, and Land Surveyors; establishing requirements for the practice of registered interior design; relating to the practice of architecture, engineering, land surveying, landscape architecture, and registered interior design; relating to the scope of the certification requirements for architects, engineers, land surveyors, landscape architects, and registered interior designers; relating to immunity for design professionals; relating to the cost of construction for recreation centers; relating to liens for labor or materials furnished; relating to the procurement of landscape architectural and interior design services; relating to the cost of construction of safe water and hygienic sewage disposal facilities in villages; and providing for an effective date.”

I support extending the State Board of Registration for Architects, Engineers, and Land Surveyors. However, this bill also creates a new state registration framework for interior designers, even though registration would be optional and the underlying profession does not require a new license to protect public health or safety.

Alaska should not expand government or occupational regulation for the purpose of creating a new professional title. If interior designers need authority to perform limited code-related work, that issue can be addressed through regulation without creating a new registration program and adding another regulated profession to an existing board.

Under the authority vested in me by Article II, Section 15 of the Alaska Constitution, I have vetoed the following bill:

HB 314 AM S

“An Act relating to registered interior designers and interior design; relating to project costs for the construction, enlargement, or improvement of airports; extending the termination date of the State Board of Registration for Architects, Engineers, and Land Surveyors; relating to the State Board of Registration for Architects, Engineers, and Land Surveyors; establishing requirements for the practice of registered interior design; relating to the practice of architecture, engineering, land surveying, landscape architecture, and registered interior design; relating to the scope of the certification requirements for architects, engineers, land surveyors, landscape architects, and registered interior designers; relating to immunity for design professionals; relating to the cost of construction for recreation centers; relating to liens for labor or materials furnished; relating to the procurement of landscape architectural and interior design services; relating to the cost of construction of safe water and hygienic sewage disposal facilities in villages; and providing for an effective date.”

I support extending the State Board of Registration for Architects, Engineers, and Land Surveyors. However, this bill also creates a new state registration framework for interior designers, even though registration would be optional and the underlying profession does not require a new license to protect public health or safety.

Alaska should not expand government or occupational regulation for the purpose of creating a new professional title. If interior designers need authority to perform limited code-related work, that issue can be addressed through regulation without creating a new registration program and adding another regulated profession to an existing board.
